"Shooting for Fairy Folk' was an actor's delight," says Rasika Dugal

Mumbai, Rasika Dugal is one of the most striking faces in the firmament of Indian entertainment and has a checked career in cinema and on the small screen. Always eager to push boundaries, she now stars in aware, with her director Kunal Gor's film 'Fairy Folk' which will hit Indian screens on March 1. The film has already won wide acclaim at the Sydney Film Festival, the Chicago International Film Festival, MAMI (Mumbai) and the India Film Festival of Melbourne, and will now enjoy a theatrical release across Mumbai, Delhi, Goa, Kanpur, and Bengaluru.

Interestingly, this is the first time that Rasika is sharing screen space with her husband Mukul Chadda. The two play a couple caught in a rather surreal situation when a genderless being enters their life and turns it upside down. Rasika says the film that has a large helping of magic realism and explores human relationships from an unusual perspective, also offered her ample freedom to improvise.

She adds, "In fact, it was a lot easier to perform in an improvised film because we shot it linearly. Usually, scripted films are shot non-linearly and you have to be mindful of continuity even though they might be shot weeks/months apart. Very often, you have to work backwards. About working with spouse Mukul Chadda in the film, Rasika shares, "Mukul and I have worked together as improvisers before. His films are what we knew how to jam together. We didn't have to go to the basics or start from scratch. It was great because we already had a working rhythm in place and we could then focus on building other things. On the flip side, Mukul is usually my sounding board after a long day but in this case, since we were shooting together, we didn't want to burden each other with opinions on what had happened. And, we definitely couldn't discuss what our characters (Ritika or Moti) were thinking because that would have completely killed all our improvisations!"
